Pittsburg, Pa., May 13.-The Senators made a show of the Pirates today in a game in which the brilliant work was all on onside. When the credits were distributed

Selbach's record was a rich one. The star left fielder was a whole team is himself, making four hits, scoring two runs and butting in another one. But that was not all, for with the bases filled in the sixth inning he performed a Helding feat which will not be soon forgotten. Donovan, stung by the Senators' spirites play, was up to save the day and banged the ball on a line to left. Selbach took the des perate chance of retiring the side or al lowing three runs to count by sprinting in and catching the ball not more than foot above the ground. Had he missed it the Pirates would have taken the lead then and there. The other Schators fielded cleanly. Wrigley and

Rellly were especially clever In all but three innings McJames had the after putting Sugden on first by making a wild throw to Cartwright, he gave two bases on balls. There were two out at the time, and, although the rooters were noisy, he settled down and retired Lyons on strikes. In the ninth, with two out, two singles and two bases on balls gave Pittsburg a run, but Brodie was retired at first, with the corners covered. Wrigley's triple and Selbach's single gave the Senators a tally in the second Base hits by McGuire, O'Brien and Cartwright, with an out, produced two in the next inning.

In the fourth Selbach singled again. stole second, and tallied on DeMontre ville's hit. Errors by Padden and Sugder enabled O'Brien to score on a single in the sixth, and Cartwright went around o a single, a sacrifice, a steal to third, and an out in the eighth. Selbach registered the last run in the ninth on his drive and singles by Mc

FITZ ON THE ALLEGED FOUL. Says the Report Is Intended to Advertise the Pictures. Baltimore, May 13.-Bob Fitzsimi laughed today when he saw an alleged verascope picture in a New York paper representing him hitting Corbett a foul blow in the fourteenth round at Carson City. "It's all a fake," he said. "The verascope will not show that. It will show me ready to hit Corbett another crack, but I saw that he was down and didn't let it go.

If I had the referee would have given the fight to Corbett all right. Corbett himself says that I did not foul him. I'll bet $5,000 that I did not strike a foul blow, and I'll bet $10,000 more that the verascope won't show it. It will show Corbett on his knees and me in an attitude ready to hit him again. This is a fake pure and simple and a money-making scheme, al-though I'll benefit from it, as every one will want to see the foul blow, and I'll get my whack " ne of the story tellers have disco ered that woman can play poker." The speaker was a man who used to travel beuse he had a constitutional antipathy to remaining in one place for any considerable length of time. "This one I've just read recalls an experience of my own.

"I had been to South America and was returning to New York by a slow steamer from Buenos Ayres. The passengers were few, and the chief end of their existence seemed to be to kill time pleasantly. Among other things we played poker, and the most enthusiastic devotee of the game was a beautiful Spanish woman, who seemed not to care whether the little curly-headed god of chance favored or opposed her. "As the end of the voyage approached the inevitable happened, for you never can run a series of these contests without working up the sensational. The woman had been a loser, and so had the dark-skinned man from Colombia who posed as an inter-esting invalid. It was the merchant from New York, seconded by the diplomaton his way to Washington, that had induced jackpots, just for that evening. No one had suffered seriously, and we agreed on just one more round. "I dealt. The diplomatopened for $100 The woman tilted it for another hundred and no one dropped out. When I offered to help the hands no one drew a card Every player stood pat, and five people joined in a frozen laugh, while all locked puzzled. Not being a believer in miracles, I laid down four aces and looked on. When the betting was done the woman raked in $5,000 on a royal flush, beating a straight or a straight flush in every other hand. "Then she suddenly grasped a handker chief on the knee of the invalid, threw it upon the table, and exposed adeck of cards. With wonderful deftness he had rung in a cold deck, while pretending to cut the cards on my deal. She alone saw it, and, throwing the money to me, asked me to give each player his share. In giving it to you, she added. I earn the right to ask a favor. Say nothing about the hateful incl dent.' As to what was behind it all, you know just as much as I do."-Detroit

Free Press. Du Maurier's Joke Pots.

One of Du Maurier's institutions was pair of vases, which he called his "joke pots." He used to receive a large number of contributions from English and Ameri can friends, all purporting to be true and worthy of an illustration by him. I know at least several instances where friends mine have sent him texts, which he soon afterward used to good advantage. As these contributions arrived, he threw them into one of these "joke pots," by way of filing -a new kind of pigeoabele. Then when a moment arrived in which he healto scratch his head for a subject, he would dip his hand, or rather his arm, into this lottery, and fish up one contribution after another, until he found one that might b regarded as a prize ticket. In order that he might insure himsel against repetition, he observed the ro tine of never putting a contribution back into the same "joke pot" from which he had extracted it, but deposited it in the second vase, until the first one had been cleared. Then he attacked the second one and emptied all the lottery slips back into the first, and so on, daily weeding out the worthless ones, and refreshing his men ory as to those best adapted to his pu . The fact that these two "joke" were kent were kept so well supplied by friends who volunteered their contribu tions is in itself ample testimony of the personal charm widely exerted by this arm-hearted master of black and white -Harper's Weekly.

A Hard Head.

There evidently is more than a joke these stories about negroes' hard heads. William Gordon, a Virginia darkey, tried to butt a trolley car off the tracks in Jersey City. Neither was hurt. In course yesterday Gordon explained that he wanted to die because he couldn't find work. He expressed a willingness to be a target if the judge wanted to try his markman ship but finally agreed to start at once for old Virginia-New York Press.

Smart Tourist (in New Hampshire, where cobblestones and granite are the principal crops)-I say there, friend, what are you building a wire fence around that field for? There isn't anything in there that any animal could possibly cat.

Farmer-Hub! Reckon I know what I'm about, sonny. I'm putting up this fence for fear some of my cows might stray in there and starve to death. - Twinkles.
